Mission Statement:

Maine Association of Building Efficiency Professionals

Maine Association of Building Efficiency Professionals (MABEP) was established in 2009 to represent and advance the interests of energy auditors, energy efficiency retrofit contractors, installers of energy efficiency materials and equipment, installers of non-fossil fuel generating devices, manufacturers and suppliers, and all other persons and businesses who seek to improve the energy efficiency of residential and commercial buildings and to reduce our dependence upon fossil fuels.

MABEP represents these interests at the Maine legislature and other policymaking forums. It serves as a clearinghouse for technical data and new ideas that will advance the cause of energy efficiency and reduce our reliance on fossil fuels.

MABEP seeks support for common standards of training and certification of all energy efficiency professionals, regardless by whom they are employed and whom they serve. MABEP provides such training and continuing education to the extent demand for appropriate training is not being met by others.

MABEP supports policies which ensure that government programs do not provide a competitive advantage for some individuals and businesses at the expense of others.

MABEP supports programs which establish long-term, stable incentives for all homeowners and businesses to invest in energy efficiency and reductions in their use of fossil fuels. This includes programs designed to educate the public on the value of improving energy efficiency in homes and commercial buildings, and increasing market awareness of the services of MABEP members.

MABEP encourages professionals to adhere to the highest ethical standards in their dealings with customers, other professionals and the general public. It encourages its members to provide high quality services at the best possible value.
